

Is a dated website causing you to lose business to your competition?

Your buyers have never expected more than they do today. And your website is the starting point.

In order to compete successfully in today's tough business environment, your lead generation and sales efforts need to be supported by a website that truly makes an impact and becomes a convenient gateway to do business with you.

In addition, it needs to more effectively attract your target audience, capture their interest and provide them a unique and convenient browsing experience, at any given time on any device. Your website has under 5 seconds to stand out and grab interest. If it is not doing that, you have lost a potential customer.

Industry Highlights

In 2017 alone, 23.2 percent of distributor sales were conducted online, accounting for more than $5.4 billion in technology-driven spending, according to PPAI's most recent Sales Volume Study.

Rapid developments in the IT space also imply quick shifts in the demand for skills and, as a result, many supplier and distributor companies are outsourcing IT services in 2018—an effective approach to maintaining flexibility and agility as business conditions continually evolve.
